IN A TRYING POSITION.

A Physician's Deadly Duel with a
Domestic Man.

He Prevented the Lunatic from Committing Suicide by Killing Him with a Pistol Shot—A Moment of Suspense.

"Well, I would hardly be willing to say," responded the physician to an inquiry made by one of a group of listeners, says the Washington Star, "that a man who committed suicide was insane, for I know several who were never suspected of insanity before the act, nor have they been since, who, to my certain knowledge, have attempted suicide. One or two cases have been made public and have got into the newspapers, but the great majority of them are professional secrets, and no one will ever know of them, except those few who know the facts of the case. It is a physician's duty to take upon himself the responsibility of the act."

"I recall one instance where I saved a man from committing suicide, and, though he never showed the slightest symptom of insanity, I am positive he was crazy as a loon at the time of the attempt. It happened about six years ago, in a western city, in a hotel where I was the resident physician. I had met the man in the evening after dinner, and had played a game of chess with him in his apartments, the finest suite in the house. He had arrived at the hotel the day before, alone, and had asked for the best rooms, paying for them in advance. Then he had asked for the house physician, and as a result of our acquaintance we were playing this game of chess. We had one or two mild drinks during the evening, and after the game was finished he turned the talk upon suicide, making some very interesting and peculiar ideas on the subject, chief of which was his utter aversion to self-murder under any circumstances whatever. He was so firm in his opposition that he almost lost his temper when

I ventured the assertion that suicide might be almost justifiable. "In the midst of this conversation he suddenly went into an adjoining room and returned with two revolvers, which he laid down on the table between us. I didn't understand what they were for, and asked him. "Well," he answered, in the coolest kind of fashion, "the time has come for me to die, and you have got to kill me. My soul would be damned forever if I did it myself, but if you do it, my blood will not be on my own hands. There are two revolvers; you take this one—handing me one—and I'll take the other. As you see, they are both loaded and in perfect condition. If you do not shoot me within a minute I shall shoot you."

"He took out his watch, and, standing five or six feet from me, counted the ticks and aimed his gun directly at my head. I saw by his eye that he was crazy, and that I would have to shoot him or pay the penalty of disobedience with my life, and still I did not want to shoot a man, however I might be justified in it. With this thought, I lifted the revolver, and, taking careful aim, he watching me narrowly, I drew the gun square down upon his forehead, and just as I was about to pull the trigger, I threw it to one side and shot for his pistol arm. My intention was good, but I was excited, and my shot only cut through the flesh without disabling him, a fact, before I had time to move, he had fired at my heart. A case of instruments in my vest pocket saved me, and the next shot I fired was more to the purpose, and my host was dead without making committed suicide."

"I told the story to the landlady, who was my friend and relative, exactly as it occurred, but to the world at large the story went forth that the man had committed suicide while crazed, and the fact that he had been in an asylum was sufficient guarantee that I was telling the truth."

Remarkable Japanese Clock.

Japan possesses a remarkable time-piece. It is contained in a frame three feet wide and five feet long, representing a boundary landscape. In the foreground plum and cherry trees and rich plants appear in bloom; in the rear is seen a hill, from which flows a cascade, admirably imitated in crystal. From this point a thread-like stream meanders, encircling rocks and islands in its windings and finally losing itself in a stretch of woodland. In a miniature sky a golden sun turns on silver wire, striking the hours on silver gongs as it passes. Each hour is marked by a creeping tortoise. A bird of exquisite plumage warbles at the close of the hour, and as the song ceases a mouse scurries forth from a neighboring grotto, and, scampering over the hill to the garden, is soon lost to view.

Backus Must Step Out.

ALBANY, Oct. 14.—The court of appeals handed down a decision affirming the decision of the appellate court in declaring that the term of office of District Attorney Backus of Kings county expires on Jan. 1, 1898, and the act of the legislature of 1896, extending his term of office two years, unconstitutional.

His Majority May Be Increased.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 14.—The official and unofficial returns of the election show the vote for mayor to be: Taggart (Dem.), 20,188; Harding (Rep.), 16,180; Taggart's plurality over Harding, 4,008. The probabilities are that the majority will be increased.

Missing Man Found Dead.

WYOMING, Wyo., Oct. 14.—John Orr, while hunting in East Brantree, found the body of J. M. Peck hanging from a tree. Peck had been missing from his home at North Brantree, since last Friday.

Summer Hotel Burned.

The insurance is $11,000 on the building and $2,500 on the contents. The loss is estimated at about $25,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Lady Lawyer Won Her Case.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Anita Hetherington Haggerty, the first woman lawyer to try a jury case in this county, won the case before Justice Giegerich in the supreme court yesterday. In this case her father, George A. Haggerty, was sued by Mrs. Johanna Haggerty for $10,000 for personal injuries.

Short Suffering.

A KISS STOPPED A TRAIN.
An Amusing Incident at the Erie's Port Jervis Station.
 From the Port Jervis Union.
 An amusing incident took place at the Erie depot, Tuesday noon, at the leaving time of train 6. A gentleman, accompanied by two ladies, hurried into the baggage room about a minute before the leaving time of the train and wanted a trunk checked to New York. While he rushed to purchase tickets, Baggage-master Charles Brown checked the trunk and the man motioned for the woman to get aboard the train, in the meantime.
 The trunk was put aboard and, as the train started, one of the women helped the other on while the man was getting the check for his trunk from Baggage-master Brown. The other woman ran alongside of the train, crying: "Oh, wait a minute, please do," and Conductor Henry Lupton, always obliging, thinking that the lady wanted to board the train, and fearing she might get injured in doing so, pulled the bell rope and the train stopped.
 To the amazement of the conductor as well as a large number of spectators on the depot platform, the woman jumped on the car platform, exclaiming: "Oh, to think I forgot to kiss you, dear thing!" and after giving her friend an affectionate smack, she leaped on the platform, and was as happy as a clam at high tide. The crowd set up a laugh and the conductor and trainmen looked anything but pleasant over their detention for a kiss in which they had not even a share. This is the first time in the history of railroad travel that a train has been stopped by a kiss.

FINDING THE BODIES.

Where the Bodies of the Victims of the Fallburgh Drowning Accident Were Found—Were Not Bruised Though Swept Five Miles Down Stream.

Special Dispatch to the Argus.

FALLBURGH, N. Y., Oct. 14.—The body of Mrs. A. D. O'Neill was found about a quarter of a mile above Bridgeville, yesterday afternoon, fast on a rock by T. Curry, Ed. Avery and Elmer Stratton.

The body of the daughter, Clara, was found about a quarter of a mile below Bridgeville, also fast on a rock, about three feet from shore, and later by Silas Demarest.

Neither of the bodies were bruised and the features were as fresh as if they were simply fast in sleep.

The bodies were taken to Fallburgh, in a covered wagon, where Undertaker Bullard, of Monticello, took charge of them.

SHE WAS A FAVORITE HERE.

Miss Clara O'Neill was in this city recently. She was a favorite with all who knew her.

Her death is especially mourned by the young people of Monticello, many of whom will attend the funeral.

LOOK OUT FOR HUNTERS.

Law Goes Off Rabbits and Squirrels To-morrow.

If you have occasion to go to the woods to-morrow with or without a gun, look out for the other fellow. Shot will fly thicker than hail and be as dangerous as a bullet.

There'll be a half dozen reckless gunners to one expert, and the coroner's outlook is as bright as the cook's.

About daylight every possessor of a gun, who can possibly get away, will begin popping at squirrels, for squirrels will be the "national" game in this State, to-morrow. Every gray whiskered jumper, who proudly sets himself up as a public chattering box will be cut off short in his music or warned to retire to his hole.

Some of the older squirrels in nearby woods have been in the business so long that they know just when to attend the caucuses in the hickory limbs. If the opposition is represented by Constable Faulkner, "Wes" Becker, "Jake" Gunther, or our own "Nick," there will be a slim attendance of sporting squirrels. If on the other hand John F. Bradner and some others in mind are to be the gunners there will be such a wood full of squirrels as was never seen or heard before.

Ed. Tompkins, Jerry Barnes, "Nick," and others are going straight to Jerry's father's woods, near Thompson Ridge, Saturday, which is unquestionably the best squirrel ground in Orange county.

"Jake" Gunther, John Wilkin and Bill Roth always prefer the Crystal Run vicinity. The woods below Bamer's, along the Wallkill, the Crans woods and across to Harvey Roe's saw mill and the Vacant will be their territory, to-morrow.

"Wes" Becker is going to his favorite ground, the Wilbur woods, near Stony Ford. Other hunters who are lying low will take in the woods near Crawford Junction and so on to the "big timber."

The markets ought to be filled with squirrels and rabbits, to-morrow night, for the Sports, Browns and other hunters will be out in force and it's more than probable that some of them have been knocking over squirrels and rabbits for several days in anticipation of the season's opening.

REGISTER! REGISTER TO-MORROW.

To-morrow is the third, and next to the last, opportunity for registration in Middletown and other cities of the State.

Saturday will be the very last opportunity for registration, and on that day, whether in city, village, or a rural district, voters desiring registration will be obliged to appear in person.

It is evident from the totals published last week that in Middletown the registration is as yet far from complete. Unless the delinquents attend to the matter to-morrow some of them, in the multiplied business cares and duties of Saturday, will forget to register, and hence lose the right to vote in the ensuing important local and State election.

The Argus desires to urge upon all citizens, and especially, of course, upon all sympathizers with the Democratic party, the imperative need of prompt attention to this duty. Don't put off until Saturday what can be done on Friday. If you neglected, or forgot, or were unable to register last Saturday, the same may be true next Saturday if you wait until then. Register to-morrow!

Boards will sit to-morrow for purposes of registration, in each district, from 9 in the morning until 9 in the evening, and the Argus hopes that before the latter hour, every Middletown Democrat will have registered.

FOOT OFF AT SLATE HILL.

Harry, the twelve-year-old son of Philo Conklin, of Slate Hill, was at the S. and W. depot at Slate Hill, at 6:15, this morning, when the freight came in. It ran by and then backed down to the station. Some how or other Harry got in the way of a wheel, and it passed over his left foot. Dr. Douglas, assisted by Drs. Pillsbury, of this city, and Barnert, of Slate Hill, amputated the foot at the instep.

A CHARGED BEAM.

Memento of the Burning of Kingston by the British.

From the Kingston Freeman.

While Contractor Munsterock was cutting out the old beams under the court room floor to make room for the new staircase he ran across an old beam of native hickory that had formed part of the floor of the old court house, burned by the British under General Vaughan on the sixteenth of October, 1777. It was hewn out of a solid log, was as hard as seasoned oak and its whole surface was charred where it had been exposed to the fire kindled by Vaughan's marauders.

Wallace Bruce's Lecture.

More than any other speaker, Wallace Bruce has been in demand on both sides of the Atlantic as the chief orator at a host of memorable occasions, notably among others at the unveiling of the Scottish standard at Bannockburn, at the unveiling of the Burns statue at Ayr and at the centennial of the disbanding of the American Army under Washington. Mr. Bruce lectures on Tuesday evening at the Assembly Rooms.

"I had catarrh for 1 year." "I had catarrh for 5 years." "I had catarrh for 20 years." "I had catarrh for 50 years," and Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder cured me. These are sentences from the volumes and volumes of testimony for this great catarrh cure—no mythical patients, but words from men and women all over the continent who have been cured. BRIGHT YOUNG WOMAN.

Lutie A. Lytle, the First Colored Woman Lawyer.

Recently Admitted to the Bar at Memphis, Tenn.—She Will Kourage in the Practice of Law at Topeka, Kan.

Miss Lutie A. Lytle, of Topeka, Kan., is the first colored woman ever admitted to the bar in any court of the United States. She is 25 years old and a native of Tennessee.

This woman, whose ambition is almost without limit, proposes to practice her profession in Kansas, and she means to make herself as conspicuous in politics as the freedom to which women are accustomed in that state will permit. She aspires to fame as a stateswoman, and the practice of law she regards merely as a stepping stone. Contrary to what might be expected, she is not a republican in politics. She is a populist of the most pronounced type, and she proposes to accomplish no less than has been achieved by those other women who have left their imprint on the policies of Kansas.

Lutie Lytle was born since the war, yet she is not far removed from slavery. Her father before the war belonged to the estate of Col. Patrick Sloan, near Chilhowee, and after the war closed and he found himself at liberty he continued to live on the old place. It was there that this girl was born, 25 years ago. When she was quite young her parents moved to Kansas, where by thrift and economy they soon acquired a snug fortune. Lytle, the father, is regarded as one of the wealthiest colored men in Kansas. His home is at Topeka. He is yet in active business, but during late years he has found plenty of leisure to devote to politics. His daughter got the best education that could be furnished by the public schools of Topeka, which are open to white and colored pupils alike. She was an apt scholar. In Kansas there are few restrictions upon the ambition of women, and when

MISS LUTIE A. LYTLE.
(The First Colored Woman Lawyer.)

The Kansas legislature of 1891 assembled Lutie A. Lytle was the successful candidate for engrossing clerk, a position she filled with eminent satisfaction to all concerned. The position, while offering substantial rewards, also afforded this girl opportunity to form the acquaintance of the leading men of the state, and she was not long in coming to the conclusion that if she were properly equipped for the battle she could find her own with the stoutest of her competitors.

Therefore, when her term in the legislature was over, this girl used the money she had earned to meet the expenses of her instruction in the law. She came to Nashville, Tenn., where is situated the central college, an institution for the higher education of the colored people. She applied herself to the law course. She was the only woman in that department of the college. There were very few colored students, but she held her own with them all. Though she studied hard, she did not neglect herself out from the enjoyment of the society of her fellow students. She was a member of the college association, and at the numerous musical entertainments given by the students she invariably relied upon to accompany on the piano.

At the recent commencement of the central college of Tennessee, among the graduates of the law department was Lutie A. Lytle. She was chosen the valedictorian of her class, in which category she acquitted herself with great credit. Besides the certificate of graduation, a diploma licensing her to practice in any of the courts of Tennessee, she received a diploma from the central college, authorized to grant such diploma. Another prerequisite for admission to the bar in that state is that an applicant shall have a certificate of good moral character from a county court, and Lutie Lytle applied to the county court of Davidson and obtained a necessary certificate.

There next remained for her to be called upon the minutes of some court as a practicing lawyer. She at once thought of being enrolled at Nashville, but Judge Anderson, to whom she applied, ruled that, inasmuch as the supreme court of the state had held that a woman could be a notary public in the state, it followed that a woman could be enrolled as a lawyer. So it was that she applied to Judge L. P. Rogers of the criminal court at Memphis, and her name was enrolled with that of the court by Lawyer J. T. Settle, colored, himself a graduate of the Howard law school at Washington and an ex-senator of Mississippi, and the motion for her admission was seconded by A. B. Sadler, who had studied with her at Central college.

Thieving Baboons in Africa.

In some parts of south Africa much damage is done by baboons, which go in large marauding parties to rob gardens.

Many women are as unprepared for the birth of their babies as if they were found on the doorstep in the good old-fashioned way.

Nine-tenths of all the suffering incident to the coming of baby is absolutely unnecessary. It is unnatural that this great function should be fraught with so much danger and distress. This was Dr. Pierce's conviction thirty years ago, and he set about to find a way to set the trouble right. The result was the preparation and introduction of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the only medicine of its kind devised by a regularly graduated, experienced and skillful specialist in the treatment of the diseases of women,—the only medicine in the world that frees the period of gestation from its discomforts, and makes parturition safe and practically painless. It is an absolute specific for all forms of female weakness and disease. It may be obtained at drug stores, and any woman who would like to know about her health, should write to Dr. Pierce, chief consulting physician at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.
